

Asymptotic p-value is too conservative in this case for most sites

Obtaining site-level dN/dS estimates with FEL

- dN/dS estimates at individual sites are not precise
- They are estimated from relatively small samples
- Precision improves with the number of sequences and divergence levels
- One approach to correct for this is to compute approximate site-level confidence intervals.